

Thought of the Day: The Goldberg Debut

Yet another idea that hasn't been used in like 15 years. Goldberg debuted on Nitro seemingly as a jobber. Tenay, the WCW announcer who seemingly knew everything, had no idea who Goldberg was or knew anything about him. Ignoring the winning streak and all that jazz, that's a pretty smart way to debut someone. Don't give them a character, don't give them anything unique, don't tell us anything about them, but have the guy win and fill in the background later. It's better than a ballroom dancer, no?
