

Only One Chamber Match At The PPV

Based on what we've gotten from the two shows this week, it's pretty clear we're only getting one Chamber match at the PPV of the same name. That's a very good thing for reasons I've said before. The problem with having two Chamber matches is summed up by a comment from I think 2009. During the second Chamber match of the night, Michael Cole said something along the lines of "when did you last see carnage like this?" I remember saying out loud: "About an hour ago." It's the same problem with having two Cell matches or any gimmick match on the same show: having the same match twice makes the impact of the gimmick match feel a lot weaker.
