

AJ Styles Signed Through The End Of The Year

According to various words on the street that is. In other words, the guy who is likely to become world champion at the biggest show of the year might not be signed two months later. From what I can find, and of course remember to take EVERY report you hear on the internet with a barrel of salt, it's due to TNA not being able to afford raises that Styles was promised. You have to think that these alleged financial problems could signal the end of Hogan's run with TNA. He must be their highest paid guy and he's barely ever on TV anymore.
