

Things You Want To See On The WWE Network

Other than specific events that is. Here are a few ideas of mine. 1. A commentary show.

As in you air matches with the wrestlers offering their own commentary on them like a director's commentary on a DVD. I've seen a few of these before and they're rather interesting at times.

2. Coliseum Video.

For you younguns, Coliseum Video was the official home video distributor for the WWF back in the 90s. They had a ton of tapes with some great stuff hidden in there, ranging from Smack Em Whack Em (BRet vs. Flair for the title and the first ladder match) to a 20 volume series called Best of the WWF to a 5 volume Hulk Hogan series, the third of which is as good of a home video as they ever released.

3. ECW specials.

Before they were on PPV, ECW's big market was in home video with specials. I'm not a fan, but a lot of those are hard to find and have some of their bigger moments included. Throw that stuff out there.

4. Compilations you won't see anywhere else.

Remember the Best of Braden Walker DVD ad? Actually do stuff like that. Throw out a Best of Curt Hawkins show or The Life and Times of Hornswoggle. Be creative and over the top with it to the point that it's fun.
