

Wrestlemania XXXIV Preview – Andre the Giant Memorial Battle Royal

There must be someone.

Andre the Giant Memorial Battle Royal

This is very similar to the Women's Battle Royal as almost no one jumps out as a likely winner. However, this time around I'm expecting more surprise names to show up and potentially win the thing. That makes for some hard guessing though as you never know who might actually be in the match. You might get someone big but at the same time you might get someone like Mojo Rawley last year, which came out of the neighborhood across the road behind left field.

Based on the names we have at the moment though, Matt Hardy seems like the best option, but I could easily see him getting eliminated so Michael Cole can make a joke about how Hardy's nonsense didn't get him anywhere and he lost in the end anyway. That's such a WWE thing to do and it wouldn't shock me in the least. If it's a surprise entrant, I'll go with....Samoa Joe, even if him returning on "Raw" would make more sense.