

Things Are Going To Be A Bit Slow

My grandmother has been diagnosed with cancer for the fourth time and likely won't be making it until February. I'll be at the hospital more often than not and while I'll have my laptop, I won't be able to do much. I might check out a show just to get my mind off things for a bit but I have no idea how things are going to go for the time being.

KB