

Wrestlemania XXXV Preview: AJ Styles vs. Randy Orton

You have to get them in somehow.

Let's go with something that should be good instead of something this boring. Both guys need something to do as Styles has beaten so many people on the show already. Orton has been floating around for years and his beating the heroes gimmick has already been mostly forgotten. That leaves you with little more than two guys needing to have a good match and...well that's not a problem for them.

I'll go with Styles winning here as he's a bigger star, though Orton has a tendency to pull off the surprise wins in these big match situations. I'm not sure if he'll actually pull it off, but it would be cool to see either of them win. Styles knowing to expect the RKO out of the Phenomenal Forearm will be good and if he can prove Orton wrong, it should be a perfectly fine moment. Either could win, but I'll take Styles.