

Wrestlemania XXXV Preview: Kickoff Show: Cruiserweight Title: Buddy Murphy(c) vs. Tony Nese

I guess it'll do.

For the life of me I don't get this one. I mean I get the story with Nese being a hometown guy and Murphy's former training partner, but Nese getting a title shot at Wrestlemania is as absurd as you can get. Outside of another Cedric Alexander match, I can't think of a weaker option than Nese in this spot. Murphy has been awesome as champion and should be on the main shows but he's stuck here trying to give some credibility to 205 Live.

I'll take Nese winning for the hometown moment, but my goodness if that's the case have Murphy moving up to the main roster immediately. He's WAY too good for this show anymore and Nese...well he's Nese and I don't know what else to say about him. This isn't going to be interesting and the fans are likely to be getting food or taking one last walk before the show, because it doesn't get much less interesting than this one.