

Eric Bischoff Out As Executive Director Of Smackdown

You had to know this was coming.

<https://wrestlingrumors.net/tommyhall/eric-bischoff-done-executive-director-smackdown-replacement-named/>

So back in June, Eric Bischoff was hired as Executive Director of Smackdown while Paul Heyman got the same job for Raw. Heyman took over and Bischoff...just kind of stuck around. He never seemed to have a defined job and somehow, he never started anything important as far as I can tell. I was kind of expecting something like this and Prichard seems to be a much better fit than anything else. It seems to be a case of someone just not being right for the job and that is just going to happen at times. They need a big name for a big show so who is better than one of Vince's right hand men?