For a billion dollars. Basically the Network itself will be shut down and everything is going over to Peacock in March. From what I can tell, you'll be getting the same thing plus Peacock for the same price, or the Network with ads plus Peacock for half the regular price. It doesn't change outside of the US.

In other words: WWE continues to find a way to make a fortune without doing anything but signing away rights. That's why they're #1 and have been for a really long time: their wrestling content itself may be bad, but they know how to make a whole lot of money.
