

About The Last Week

So I learned something this week: don't review wrestling shows when you're on some strong antibiotics and cough syrup. I've been looking back at some of the things I put up and I have pretty much no memory of putting them together. I remember watching the shows and writing the reviews, but the details are not quite how I remember them going. Apparently I was wrong when I said the medicine didn't affect me as....yeah there are some bad misfires in there. I'm still on some of them for the next few days but I'm mostly out of the woods. I'm sorry in advance if there are even more head scratch inducing moments than usual.