

Raw Ends On A Cliffhanger

And it's a good one. Becky Lynch apologized to HHH and Stephanie and was told that she's going to Wrestlemania. The bosses left but Vince came out to say that he didn't buy the apology, meaning Becky is suspended until after Wrestlemania. Charlotte will be taking her place against Ronda Rousey.

I don't think anyone buys this as an ending that is going to stick (you can see the triple threat coming from here) but it's a nice way to buy some time with all of the shows that they have to fill up between now and New Jersey. This was a lot better than I was expecting and I'm looking forward to the storytelling, even if it seems destined to be equally about the McMahons.
