

Two Things To Celebrate (Your Did You Know Of The Day)

And they're rather firmly linked. Happy birthday to Undertaker, who was born 54 years ago and to the Streak, which was born 28 years ago.

Not bad for a birthday present.

Happy Anniversary

To me actually. Ten years ago to the day, I posted my first ever review. Now it's about 5200 later, meaning I put up about ten reviews a week. I know I've slowed down a lot over the years, but egads how did that happen? Thank you for being around with me this long and I'll try to be around for a long time. I mean, I'm destined for carpal tunnel but I can get someone to take dictation right?

Happy Anniversary

To the WWE Network, which launched five years ago. That's incredibly appropriate as I'm using it to watch the fifth year anniversary of Smackdown. The Network really is the greatest gift imaginable for a wrestling fan and there is very little that will ever come close to its level of awesomeness. There is practically something new almost every day and with Wrestlemania for $10, what else can you ever want?

Happy Anniversary

To me, as I started this place on December 8, 2010. For some reason I can never get the date right.

I can't believe it's been five years and the site has hit levels I never expected it to reach. Thanks to everyone for following me all this time and I'll be around as long as you'll have me.

KB