

When Baseball Meets Wrestling

So I took in the Lexington Legends game last night. The Legends are co-owned by former MLB star Brandon Phillips, who has a certain wrestling wife. It happened to be Phillips' birthday last night and his wife seems to have been there to see him. I was down in the concourse between innings and ran into someone.

Very nice lady who seemed pleased that someone recognized her. Granted being taller than I am, the biceps, the hair and the AEW shirt tied around her waist were some hints.