

Thought of the Day: Like Clockwork

Why do we always miss this? It's fall again and, just like every year, WWE is getting dull. As usual, fans are annoyed that the product sucks, even though they sit through this EVERY SINGLE YEAR. Think about it: every year the last few months are always a letdown and every single year the fans act surprised by it. Why would you expect it to be different? There has to be a down time in there somewhere, if nothing else just due to people running out of gas and needing to recharge a bit.

Every year it's the same thing and every year it's the same response. It really should be expected by now.