

WWE Trivia Game Site

You might have heard me talk about Sporcle before. Sporcle is a really fun and addictive trivia site with quizzes about everything, ranging from word games to Harry Potter to countries of the world. Well now they have a WWE section which I use to kill time on a daily basis. I can highly recommend the random button, though it's incredibly addictive. There's also TNA stuff in there but it's limited as you would expect. Check it out.

Plug For An Amazing Site

I've discovered these guys while I'm down in the Big Easy and I'm sold for life: Parkingpanda.com.

It's a simple idea: order parking permits in advance. Down here for Wrestlemania and Raw, it's $15 to park per show, cash only. Parkingpanda listed a TON of parking areas within half a mile of the show, with some far under the cost. I got a pass for each show for $4.50 each and THEY WORKED. I found the parking lot, walked maybe ten minutes and was at the Super Dome. No issues, no waiting in line (it was a good sized lot but very few cars as the regular price is higher than the site's price), easy to get in and out of, it was great.

They're available in most major cities with passes available for most major sports teams and arenas. Check them out.

Nice Soccer (Football For You Strange European People) Website

It's for a local team called Darlington 1883 and is operated by one of my readers. I'm not entirely sure what level they're at as I'm not a fan of the sport but the team name sounds cool. Check them out.
