

Two Big Names Returning

Just in case there wasn't enough going on tonight. It was announced on Raw that Kevin Owens and Sami Zayn would both be back soon (no dates given of course). They've been on the shelf with injuries of late with Sami being out since June and Owens since October. This is the kind of thing that can bring some energy to the show as neither is going to be in the World Title (yes that still exists) scene anytime soon, but they can offer some entertaining segments and help fill in a lot of the time on the show. Owens is always good for some talking and Sami is entertaining either with Owens or on his own. I would have bet on these two being the big post-Wrestlemania surprise but I could live with them being back in the Rumble instead.

Favorite Return

With Brock's return last Monday, I figured this would be a good topic. Read the title. What's yours'? I have to go with Undertaker at Judgment Day 2000. It came out of nowhere and he had been gone just long enough that you had forgotten he was gone but he wasn't completely forgotten yet. The fact that it was the ending to a great match helps too.

Thoughts?

So Uh, The Rock is Back

Not sure how I got to Friday without making this thread. Obviously the Rock is back in WWE at least for one more night. Thoughts on this? Thoughts on Mania?

Booker T/Diesel Back in WWE

Thoughts?