

Thought of the Day: And We Hit The Chinlock

Why would someone want to do that? Think about it. In the history of wrestling, when has a chinlock not led to the guy in the hold starting a comeback? You would think that someone would eventually realize that they don't do what they're supposed to do and seem to revive wrestlers more than wearing them down. I'd love to see a character who picks up on all these things that never work and wrestle a smarter style for lack of a better term.

The Coffee Segment Was Inspired By...

This is somehow dumber than what I thought. Apparently we had to sit through Stephanie vomiting on Vickie because one of the McMahons recently had a cup of bad coffee.

Seriously.
