

Thought of the Day: Hang On A Minute

I'll be right back. Why doesn't wrestling ever end in a cliffhanger anymore? Everything always has to be wrapped up in a nice bow and be ready for next week. You can end a show by asking a big question or mentioning that you need to tune in next week to find something out. For example, one of the very last Saturday Night's Main Events ended with Bobby Heenan getting a phone call and saying that one of the Ultimate Maniacs had been injured and wouldn't make Survivor Series. Want to find out who? Well tune in to the next show to find out!

Why is that so complicated? Not everything has to be self contained.
